The image displays ten vertical columns for handwriting practice. Each column is defined by a dashed line on the left and a solid line on the right. The first column shows a mouse character being enclosed by a semi-circle on the left. The second column shows a mouse character between the lines. The third column shows a mouse character between the lines with a solid line on the left. The fourth column shows a mouse character between the lines with a solid line on the right. The fifth column shows a mouse character between the lines with a semi-circle on the right. The sixth, seventh, eighth, ninth, and tenth columns show a mouse character between the lines with solid lines on both sides, representing the final step of enclosing the character.
